TOLEDO WINS AGAIN.

They Played Well, But the Visitors Played Still Better.

The ball tossers from Toledo again proved more than a match for our boys in the third game between the two clubs yesterday. O'Day proved more effective than on his first appearance, and was finely supported in the field. The visitors also failed to punish Barr until the last innings, when they broke him up, and put in some very good hitting. Hanna was not up to his usual good style in catching, yet only one of the passed balls assisted in giving runs. This, with a wild pitch and two errors by Prince in the fourth inning, gave three runs.

Mullin made a fine throw from center field in the second inning, catching Welch at the home plate. Mullin and Smith ran into each other in the eighth while attempting to field Mullane's fly, knocking Mullin down, and injuring him so that he was obliged to retire from the game, Mullane scoring his run by means of the accident. In the ninth Welch hit a difficult bounding ball to Fennelly, who stopped it well, but could not recover in time to throw the striker out. Walker, Mofflit, and Barkley followed with good hits, searing three runs, two carned.

Walker, Moffitt, and Barkley followed with good hits, searing three runs, two,carned.

The home club carned one in the first inning off Hawkes's safe hit, a wild pitch, and Tilley's audi of Prince's diy. On base hits by Barr and Fennelly and sharp base running they earned another in the fifth. Gladmon, Fennelly, and Mallin fielded well. Barkley and Walker excelled for the visitors.

HELPING THE POOR.

A Month's Work of the Associated Charl-ties-Plans for the Future. The regular monthly meeting of the Associsted Charities of the District of Columbia was held last night at the central office. Among those present were Judge Suell, Commodere Fairfax, Dr. Peck, and others, including several ladies.

The report from the central office showed : Money received $47.25, calls made 132, applications for provisions 14, servants 10, for aid 13, lodgings 6, meals 8, groceries furnished to 2, fuel 1, rents paid 4, shoes given I pair, employment 2.

The reports from the thirteen subdivisions showed that a number of persons had been relieved, and employment found for some of them, and that there had been more street begging in the third subdivision during the past two months than during the whole previous eases.

In the third subdivision, the office located at 2153 Ponnsylvania avenue, there have been established a kindergarten for children be-tween 3 and 8 years of age, a kitchengarten for girls between 11 and 14 years of age, and tween 3 and 8 years of age, a kitcheagarten for girls between 11 and 11 years of age, and a children's sewing class.

The report from the fourth subdivision showed that 500 persons had been relieved during the month, and 6,000 meals given. The average number of children left at the day nursery each day was thirteen.

A favorable report was received from the Georgetown Industrial school for colored girls, under charge of Mrs. Highgate.

The Associated Charities of the District of Columbia was organized in 1881, and incorporated early in 1882. Before its organization street begging had increased to an alarming extent, lat has materially decreased within the past two years, and 4,000 persons have been relieved.

It is proposed p add to the central department a school of instruction in housekeeping or a kilchen gar, and, a nursery where children may be left by their mothers while out at work, a woody for where men can carr a ment or lodging without begging, and a sewing room where women can be comployed in mending old and making new garments.

A motion of Mr. Fester was adopted to appropriate from the $550 balance on hand in the treasury toward the establishment of a tohen garden. Admiral Fairfax, who resides in the wealthy Admiral Fairfax, who resides in the wonldy locality of Connecticut avenue, spoke of the difficulty experienced in raising money for the poor. Only $256 in all had been raised in that (his) neighborhood. He favored the kitchengardens and a kindergarten, and said that the work of charity was God's work, and especially among the children.

General Agent Bradford, seconded by Mrs. Russell, made an earnest appeal for prisoners discharged from the jail and workhouse, and thought that something should be done to discharged from the jail and workhouse, and thought that something should be done to keep them from relaxing into bad habits. He said that 4,000 men, women, and boys were discharged every year from those places. He moved that an auxiliary society for aiding discharged prisoners should be organized. The breaident referred the matter to a committee who will report at the next meeting. next meeting.

CONGRESSMAN HORE.

What He Saw, Heard, and Said in the Convention.

"It was the first national convention I ever attended," said Representative Horr, of Michigan, yesterday, "and it was composed largely of representative men of the different states, with a notable absence of prominent public men. The delegates represented emphatically the business interest of the country, and there were probably more men present who came ready to change their minds if any good rea-son was given than at any con-vention ever held, except the one that nominated Lincoln. This was illustrated in the independence of thought which led to the rejection of the temporary chairman recommended by the committee, and I do not think any such case was ever heard of before. While there was a wild excitement carried on by the outsiders, the delegates were orderly and reaveship unit. Mr. Risings a nominaon by the outsiders, the delegates were orderly and reasonably quiet. Mr. Blaine's nomination was the result of preference for him. I don't think that it would have been possible to form combinations that would have resulted differently. If the Edmunds men had gone to Mr. Arthur, there were enough others who preferred Mr. Blaine, so that the result would have been the same. A large majority of the Sherman men wanted Blaine as second choice. This was also true of the Logan men, so that I can think of no combination that would have defeated him. I do not believe that the figuring and working among delegates had much to do with the result. If the vote had been taken on the arrival of the delegates it would have been the same.

"The most amusing thing about the convention was the controversy between the district delegates. Congor was for Arthur, but the coldelegates. Conger was for Arthur, but the colored man had the advantage because he was with the majority. From the outset there seemed to be a feeling that Conger was trying to override his colored colleague, and every time that Carson did anything that looked like asserting himself, Conger would break out, while the colored man was cheered and encouraged.

The great event of the day was the procession. It was two hours in passing the and encouraged.

"The most energetic, lively, and deter-mined men came from the Pacific slope, and they had great influence, because they came with a purpose and never let up. The nomination of Logan was one of the most spontaneous and onthusiastic uprisings in the convention, and I think his name alone will give us over thirty congressmen in close districts that we could not have carried with any man less popular with the soldiers. There is no man the soldiers idealize more than Logan. The ticket will carry Michigan than Logan. The ticket will carry Michigan by a large majority, and will give us ten out the cieven congressmen, and the eleventh had better look out. The mere fact that the people believe that Blaine is in favor of sustaining the American nation and encouraging American industries will add thousands of votes in every state. I cannot see what combinations the descents can make in executions the descents can make in executions.

in every state. I cannot see what combina-tions the democrats can make to overcome our ticket and save them from overwhelming defeat. You will see that our ticket will grow in strength until the election. I look for an exciting campaign, but expect that by the time the democratic convention is held Blaine and Logan clubs will be organized all over the country, and the entire party will be in line ready for work, and any democrat who thinks that our ticket is to be beaten by defamation and mud slinging will be very much mistaken."

TAXING PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The New York Grand Jury Say It Should He Abolished.

NEW York, June 10.-The special grand ory of the court of over and terminer to-day made a report as the result of their investigation of the finance department of the city vernment.

The presentment declares that there are radical objections to the taxasion of personal property in this city and it should be abelished, as it was impossible to attempt the equitable assessment of personal property. It says that no suspicion attackes to the cierk of arrears, but that a rigid system of checks and balances is necessary.

In regard to assessment for improvements generally, the grand jury recommend that all claims for extra work should be rigidly examined. Concerning the coupon frauds, the presentment says there is no evidence that previous to 1870 there was any fraudulent payment of interest on the registered stock.

lost payment of interest on the registered stock.

The Carroll coupon frauds are reviewed at some length. The presentment says Carroll is the only criminal, but the moral responsibility is on a number of persons: 1. The framers of the charter of 1873 for inconsiderate legislation. 2. Those who arranged the system in regard to the provisions of the charter of 1873. 2. David P. Johnson for not knowing the coupon ticket and coupon ledger were much in arrears. 4. The auditor.

knowing the coupon ticket and coupon ledger were much in arrears. 4. The auditor, Daniel Jackson, for not being effective in his supervision. 5. Wm. C. Emmet and Frank Forrester, for neglect of duty.

The presentment then sets forth the duties of the commissioners of accounts, the deputy comptroller, and the compiroller. The jury hope a sense of individual responsibility, which has been wanting, will bring about a change. They believe the civil service enactments will improve the administration of the city business, and that political patronage is an injustice to the heads of bureaus.

Transferring so-called unexpended balances justice to the heads of bureaus.

Transferring so-called unexpended balances of appropriations to uses other than specified was an abuse which ought to be stopped. The grand jury say they do not suspect the existence of fraudulent or unauthorized issues of city bonds, as certain runners are affont to that effect. If bonds should hereafter appear they will not be considered valid claims.

arrival of the delegates it would have been the same.

"My preference had been for Elaine provided I could be satisfied that he was strong before the people. I had no serious doubt except as to New York, and by talking with almost every delegate from that state I became satisfied that if he could not carry New York no other republican could.

"Chicago received us and took good care of us with the greatest esse, and the accommodations were perfect. The convention was unfortunate in the selection of a regular chairman, and had to look out for itself, as his voice could not be heard in hardly any portion of the hall. There were a great many colored delegates there, and most of them were able talkers. The great fault with the nominating speeches was their great length, and if you could judge from these our party is made up of political giants. I do not think that there was a particle of packing for any candidate. At times there was intense feeling among alternates and people because their delegations did not vote as they wanted them to, but at the same time they kept away from the delegates, and there was very little undue pressure brought to bear on any delegate. I have been to many state conventions where there was more personal exertion than at Chicago.

He "One of the curious incidents happened when Foraker referred to Blaine while nominating I am absent from home, the safe must not be Sherman. The convention went wild with enthusiasm, and his face was a picture. He told them when he was through to wait until their man was out of the woods. His presentation speech was one of the best. Gov. Long was the only one who got any real applause for his speech. West, the blind man, who nominated Blaine, made an elequent speech, but it was long and strained. I was disappointed with Townshend's effort, and am frank to say that I do not think that the delegates were influenced in the least by any of the speeches made.
